CONGRESS ADJOURNS,

AFTER A SESSIOM OF NEARLY BIGHT MONTHS.

All the Appropriations, Except the Portifications

Bill, Signed—The Conferees Disagree on the Latter—The Georgia Vacant-Judgeship—

The James Indebtedness, etc., etc.

WASHINGTON, August 5 .- [Special.] -There never has been a more orderly adjournment of congress than that which occurred at four p'clock this afternoon. The work had been brought up in good shape, and at no time during the closing hours was there the rush and confusion usually experienced at the end of a session. Soon after congress met, a number of bills were sent up from the white house, after having been approved by the president. Among these was the river and harbor bill. The announcement that it had been signed plicited a burst of applause in the house. Its many friends had been in deep anxiety as to its fate. The president was up until two c'clock with the secretary of war and the board of engineers examining the bill, and early this morning the prevailing rumor at the capitol was that the bill would be vetoed.

THE MORRISON RESOLUTION. The Merrison surplus resolution reached the president about eleven o'clock. When the hour of adjournment arrived it had not been signed, and, therefore, it dies. Mr. Morrison said be was not much surprised at the president's failure to sign it, as the influence of the administration had been against the resolution. He will, at an early stage of next session, renew the resolution, and it will doubt-less again pass both houses in about the shape agreed on at this session. Many democratic members think that the emphatic expression of both houses in favor of the resolution will have some effect on the policy and conduct of the treasury officials, but there is little ground for that hope. The men row in control of the treasury act as if they were the absolute owners of the people's money, and not the mere agents for its care and disbursement, It will require something stronger than a mere expression of opinion by congress to move these gentlemen and to inform them what their business really is.

THE GEORGIA JUDGESHIP. While about thirty Georgia lawyers are in the contest for the vacant district judgeship at Atlanta, the Alabama lawyers have a similar plum to contend for. At this session a bill was passed giving a judge to the southwestern district of that state court to be held at Mobile. About fifteen prominent lawyers from all parts of the state are applicants for the new judgeship. Prominent among these are Judge Tomlin and Mr. Bester, of Mobile; G. R. Farnham, of Evergreen; Judge Cobb, of Tuskegee, and Mr. Webb, of Birmingham, Alabaras. Congressmen think one of the first three named will be appointed.

Sensters Brown and Colquitt called today at the treasury department to consult with the the treasury department to consult with the proper officials concerning the five thousand dollars taxes claimed against John H. James, of Atlanta, on bank deposits. The treasury officials are disposed to leave the matter in the hands of the collector of internal revenue and the district attorney at Atlanta. District Attorney Hill, who is here, says the full announcement of the taxes claimed should be paid.

Mr. Ingalls said he thought the senate was being triffed with. He submitted that it was not appropriate after the business of both houses was considered closed, and when they were all ready to depart, to be kept here doing nothing in the expectation or hope, or surmise, or conjecture that, at some time in the future, they would be advised what action might be taken by the executive on the bill sent to him for his approval. It was trifling with public interests to allow the adjournment resolution to remain unacted on. It was the first time in executive history that congress had been permitted to adjourn without the executive coming to the capitol and availing himself of the usual custom to ascertain the will of con gress. Mr. McMillan suggested that it was but twenty minutes after the hour of meeting and it was not reasonable to expect that the presi dent should be so much on the alert as to be present at the very hour of meeting. After some further discussion in the same temper, the senate got around the question by going

The house conferees had declined that, and had also declined to sign the conference report.

Mr. Allison called up the joint resolution to pay subsistence and traveling expenses of special sgents and experts of the bureau of labor for the month of July, 1886. Passed.

Mr. Blair gave notice that on the first day of next session he would ask consideration for a joint resolution proposing an amendment to the constitution extending the right of sufferage to women. Mr. Harris (the chair being occupied by Mr.

Mr. Edmunds objected.

Mr. Conger gave notice that he would ask the senate to consider the bill at an early day next session. Mr. Hawley, referring to Mr. Beck's bill to prohibit members of congress, acting as counsel for subsidized railroad companies, said he had been seeking an opportunity to have it called up and acted on, but other business had stood in the way.

Mr. Beck agreed with Mr. Hawley that it had been impossible ro have action on the bill this session. He thought, however, that the bill had not had fair play. He did not believe that a single member of the judiciary committee would vote for the substitute which it had reported. He thought that the committee had sought to make a burlesque of what he regarded as a very serious matter. He moved that the second Monday in December next be fixed for its consideration.

Mr. Allison corrected his statement of yesterday by making the appropriations of the present fiscal year exceed those of last year by $45,000,000 instead of $33,000,000.

Then Mr. Edmunds changed his motion for a recess so as to make it extend to six minutes before 4 and entered into a discussion with the chair as to parliamentay practice and rule in the case of the absence of a quorum, the chair holding that no motion but one to adjourn, or to compel the attendance of absent members, was in order. The question could not be decided by submitting it to the senate, as the same difficulty about a quorum would arise there; and $20 by general consent, there was a suspension of any attempt at business mutil the hands on the clock dial indicated a quarter before 4.

Mr. Edmunds—If receiving a message and entering it on the journal is not business, I am greatly mistaken.

After another short delay the moment of adjournment arrived, and the chair said: adjournment arrived, and the chair said:
Senators, before announcing the termination of this session of the senate, I beg leave to return to each of you my grateful thanks for your uniform courtesy and kindness to me as your presiding officer, and especially for the resolution of today, in which you have expressed your approval. This session has been distinguished by the great number and variety of subjects which have been considered, and by the marked absence of political controversies. The varied needs and aims of the rapidly growing country have occupied more of the time of the senate. A short recess will enable you to greet your constituents, and I hope and trust that each of you will return next Decemberwith renewed health and strength to your importent duties. In pursuance to the resolution of the two houses of congress, I now declare this session

THE WIND-UP OF THE HOUSE. Mr. Baker's Speech to be Printed in the Re-

Washington, August 5.—In the house Mr. Randall asked and received uranimous consent to have printed in the Record his speech upon the tarifi bill, introduced by him, and a resolution was adopted providing for the printing of 3,800 copies of the adverse report of the committee on ways and means upon the

Mr. Morrison offered a resolution, granting the committee appointed to investigate labor troubles in the west, permission to sit during the recess with all powers granted to it in the original resolution, providing for its appointment. Adopted.

The senate having announced to the house the appointment of a committee to wait upon the president and to inform him that congress was ready to adjourn the speaker ap-pointed Messrs. Morrison, Randall and His-cock as a similar committee on the part of the house.

While the clerk of the house was reading the president's veto on a pension bill the president's assistant secretary, Mr. Pruden, appeared at the north door of the chamber and instantly he and the message he held in his hand became a target for every eye. When he announced the president's approval of the de-ficiency, sundry civil and river and harbor bills, there was a sound of applause and the gloom which had settled upon the members by reason of rumors that were rife that the river and harbor bill had been vetord, was dis-

Mr. Baker, of New York, rising to a per-sonal explanation, referred to the introduc-tion by him of a preamble and resolution arraigning the democratic party on Monday last. In the characterization of that resolution, the Mr. Harris (the chair being occupied by Mr. Hawiey) offered a resolution of thanks to Senator Sherman for the ability, courtesy and impartiality with which he had presided over the senate during the present session.

The question was put and the chair declared the resolution unanimously adopted, but Mr. Riddleberger demanded the presence of a quorum declaring that the resolution ought not to pass, and without a quorum could not pass. In this difficulty, there not being a quorum present, the senate, at 12:10, took a recess until one o'clock.

After recess Mr. Conger asked to have the stances, the resolution might be printed in the Record.

Mr. Caldwell. of Tennessee, objected.

Mr. Baker then took the floor on the question of privilege and as part of his remarks, had the resolution read in order thus to secure its publication in the Record.

Several efforts were made by the democrats to prevent the reading of the paper, and during one of the interruptions, Mr. Gibson, of West Virginia, declared that the paper contained statements which were false upon their face.

When the document had been about half read, Mr. Bland, of Missouri, raised a point of order that it was disrespectful to the house, and asked that the speaker rule the paper out of order.

This the speaker rule the paper out of order.

This the speaker declined to do on the ground that the question of disrespect was one which must be decided by the house, and that before the house could decide upon it thereading must be concluded.

From this decision Mr. Bland appealed, and upon a motion to table the appeal, raised the point of no quorum.

Messrs. Baker and Bland were appointed tellers, and for an hour they retained their places in front of the speaker's desk, but no quorum was forthcoming.

Bequests for unanimous consent to put various measures upon their passage were denied by demands for the regular order, generally made by Mr. Browne, of Indians, who also objected to Mr. Morrison's request to take up the adjournment resolution for the purpose of concurring in the senate amendment. Mr. Brown stated that he would object to everything until the pending matter was disposed of. This could be done if the gentleman from Missouri would withdraw his point of no quorum.

After recess Mr. Hiscock, of New York

moved to suspend the rules and pass the bill regulating duties on tobacco wrappers. Mr. Hiscock took the floor and spoke in support of his motion until seven minutes before four. The next three minutes were consumed in attempting to secure consent to have the majority report on the tariff bill printed in the Record, and then the speaker, without any preliminary remarks, declared the house adjourned, sine die.

GOSSIP OF THE DAY.

Around the Capitol.

Washington, August 5.—The south wing of the capitol was unusally quiet during the day. The attendance of members was small, and the crowd that in the past years filled the galleries during the closing hours of the session was absent. It was observed that when the message was received announcing that sion was absent. It was observed that when the message was received announcing that the president had approved the river and harbor bill, there was an exodus of members from the floor, and those who remained spent the time in the exchange of pleasantries and farewell greetings. Profiting by the experience of past years, the speaker notified the keeper of the house restaurant, early in the day, that the sale of intoxicating liquors would not be permitted; so thirsty members and visitors to the house satisfied their thirst with lemonade and other mild beverages.

The object of the leading senators throughout the day was to prevent any questionable legislation and the plan resorted to for that purpose, was in the first place to interpose objections to requests for unanimous consent, and in the second place to suspend business by taking a recess. Outside of the passage of a couple of bills, removing the political disa-bilities and a bill to relieve some Michigan soldiers from the disgrace of dishonorable discharges, no business was done. There were one or two fruitless to get in a resolution one or two fruitless attempts to get in a resolution for extra pay for congressional employes. When Mr. Edmunds was about to start for the white house, in company with Mr. Harris and a house committee, he enjoined on a few sena-tors to object to everything in his absence, and his injunction was faithfully observed. tation in the closing hours of the session was Mr. Riddleberger's objection to the usual resolution of thanks to the presiding officer, but Mr. Hawley, who was in the chair, stretched a point and declared the resolution adopted unanimously, in total disregard of Mr. Riddleberger's demand that there must be a quorum voting. There were probably not more than thirty senators present at one time during the day, and the galleries were just as slimly oc-day, and the galleries were just as simily occupied as the floor was.

Although the house by resolution today authorized the Curtin's special labor investigating committee to continue its work through the entire recess, yet members of that committee express the opinion that two or three daily sessions will suffice to complete the taking of testimony. Mr. Hoxie's evidence is the only material matter wanted. It is unlikely that the committee will be called together next fall.

THE RIVER AND HARBOR BILL. The President Gives His Reason for Approv ing It.

WASHINGTON, August 5.—To an associated press reporter the president said this morning that an examination of the river and harbor bill, in the light of facts presented to him by General Newton, chief of engineers of the army General Newton, only of engineer corps, and General Parks, of the engineer corps, with whom the president conferred on the subject, had convinced him that, on the whole, the interests of the government demanded its with whom the president conferred on the subject, had convinced him that, on the whole, the interests of the government demanded its approval. General Newton, whose knowledge of the condition of the present works and the necessities for the future was based on reports made to him by the engineer corps of the army assured the president that of the items in the bill all but eighteen in number, comprising less than one per cent of the amount appropriated, were meritorious beyond question, and while he in no manner condemned those, he was unable to give a positive opinion, because of the lack of complete information concerning them. The president made as thorough an examination of these items as possible, and although with such reports as were at hand, he had been unable to absolutely satisfy himself as to their character, he found that all appeared to be for the continuation of the work already begun, and now in the course of construction. The president said he had gone over the bill as fully as the data at hand and the time permitted for that purpose allowed, and while some of its provisions, not included in the items above mentioned, were probably objectionable he was satisfied that most of the improvements previded for were of great importance, and he had found that the loss which would ensue to the government from the destruction of existtthilated on Third Column Pitth Page

MAYOR GRACE STRIBUTE.

New YORK, August 5.—Mayor Grace sent the following communication to the board of aldermen today:

MAYOR'S OFFICE, New York, August 5, 1886.—To the Honorable Board of Aldermen: I have been informed that a special meeting of your body has been called for the purpose of taking appropriate action on the death of Samuel J. Tilden, former governor of the state of New York. Such a tribute of respect to his memory is eminently fitting from the local authorities of this great city, not only because of the distinguished services he has rendered the state and nation at large, but also because of those particular services which he rendered to the city of New York in his masterly fight against the corruptionists of the Tweed regime. Governor Tilden can easily be said to have been the foremost man in the democratic party. He was a politician in the highest and noblest sense of the term. Whatever political ambition he may have had was guided by a torm, and uncompromising adherence to the principles which admitted no place to corrupt methods in politics. He attacked dishonest democrats with even more zeal than dishonest republicans, and indeed had greater akhorence of the former than of the latter. His industry was untiring. He left no since unturned; neglected no proper method to achieve such ends as commended themselves to his wisdom and his judgment in the selection of means in the attainment of ends was well night infallible. His mind was broad and comprehensive. He was never swayed by petty prejudice, nor infallible. His mind was broad and comprehensive, which made his expositions most convincing. He possessed the rare attributes of great statesmanship in an eminent degree. Above all, he was animated by a lofty patriotism, remarkable in the annals of this or any other nation, which subordinated personal ambition to the lest intenset of his fellow-citizens and deprived him of a distinguished honor which justly belonged to him. An anonored citzen, learned lawyer, wise counsellor and incorruptible and

VERY SORRY IS MR. HAYES.

FREMONT, O., August 5.—Last evening the editor of the Democratic Messenger requested an interview with ex-President Hayes on the death of Mr. Tilden, but the request was refused. This evening Mr. Hayes addressed the following note to the editor:

Your request for an interview on the occasion of the death of Mr. Tilden was declined in accordance with my uniform habit on the subject of interviews. I wish, however, to say that there has been nothing in the relations of Mr. Tilden and myself which would prevent me from sharing in the sentiments and manifestations which are natural and fitting on the death of a political leader and states man so able and distinguished as Mr. Tilden. Sincerely,

R. B. HAYES.

LEAVEN WORFH, KS, August 5.—The following resolutions concerning the death of Samuel J. Tilden was offered and adopted by the state democratic convention, amid profound silence:

Resolved, That this convention has just heard, with deep sorrow, of the death of Hon. Samuel J. Tilden and desires to express their appreciation of this great loss to the country in the death of this man, democrat and statesman without stain. He goes to his rest with the blessing and benediction of the American people. The democracy of Kansas join with their brethren of the nation in the deeper sorrow over their country's honors blest.

SOUTH CAROLINA DEMOCRATS.

Last Day of the State Convention - Nominee Platform, Etc., COLUMBIA, S. C., August 5.—The democratic state convention nominated J. H. Rice, of Ab-beville, for superintendent of education; Isaac beville, for superintendent of education; Isaac S. Bambberg, of Barnwell, for treasurer; Joseph H. Earle, of Sumter, for attorney general A. M. Manigault, of Charleston, for adjutant general, and W. E. Stoney, of Berkely, for comptroller. The ticket includes three of the present officials—Richardson, state treasurer, getting the nomination for governor and the nominees for comptroller and adjutant general being incumbents.

The committee on platform omitted the civil service plank, but the convention, by a large majority, restored it, reiterating their confidence in civil service reform.

The convention then adjourned sine die.

The convention finished its work much earlier than was expected. The entire seesion was harmonious and pleasant, and not one disagreeable incident occurred. Captain B. R. Tillman, the farmer's Moses, who was expected to be obtrusive and bellycose, was quiet as a lamb, and modest as a school was quiet as a lamb, and modest as a school girl. He had intended playing the mischief and slashing everybody and everything at his own sweet will, but to his unutterable dismay this cunning schemer found that the greater part of his followers had deserted him, and had made terms with his enemies. He choked down in silence his disappointment wisely, he abstained from any active participation in the doings of the convention. Had he tried on any of his blustering and bulldoxing methods, he would have been unmercifully sat down upon.

It was expected that there would be a lively fight for statchouse officers, and there was. After much balloting an excellent set of officials were chosen. Every man in the bunch is up to the political standard. All are men of experience, honesty and ability.

The work of the convention is so admirable that the democratic party is wonderfully strengthened.

The platform renews allegiance and devotion to the principles of the party and enunciates the following principles and policy in the state and federal affairs.

First. Wise and just legislation and an impartial administration of equal laws.

2. A popular education bill, works of free institutions, and a liberal support for public schools for the whole people.

3. The present protective tariff taxes the many for the benefit of a favored few. Duties on imports should be decreased. The early repeal of the duty on cotton ties, on machinery used in the manufacture of cotton and wool, and on tools and agricultural implements, will stimulate manufactures and be a measure of relief to the farmers.

The public credit, national and state, must be maintained.

5th. Asserts that democratic rule in the state signifies public safety and private security.

THE TENNESSEE ELECTIONS.

The Full Democratic Ticket Elected--Large Gains for the Democracy.

Nashville, Tenn., August 5.—[Special.]—Partial reports from all over the state indicate a bright, clear day and very heavy vote, which of itself means a democratic victory. Returns and partial returns from many counties indicate large democratic gains over two years ago, and election of the entire supreme bench. The officers to be elected were five supreme judges and full district and county officers. Shelby connty, hitherto close and republican two years ago, elects the entire democratic ticket. Davidson, the capital county, elects every democratic nominee, with perhaps, a single exception, that of Thomas H. Sneed, independent democrat, who is a lame ex-confederate soldier, defeats Henry B. Morrow for county treasurer. All the other counties heard from report democratic gains. Full returns not obtainable tonight on account of the long list to be voted. THE PORK PACKERS' STRIKE. The Employers Want the Ten Hour Day Instead of the Eight Hour system.

CHICAGO, August 5.—There has been no change in the situation at the packing houses at the union stock yards. The men who struck yesterday at Hatley's and Fowler's packing houses, on a refusal to work by the bour, are still out, and contend that it will cause a defeat of the eight hour working day with highed three months ago. The propries established three months ago. The proprie-tors declare that they are running their houses at serious disadvantage, as compared with Milwaukee, Omaha and Kansas City, where the ten hour working day is still in force, and that they cannot keep their houses open without a concession on the part of their employes. The hog market was unsettled this morning, owing to the existing strike, and prices ten cents per hundred pound lower.

REDMOND'S NEW HOME. The Noted Outlaw Dying from Consum;

tion.

SENECA, S. C., August 5.—[Special.]—Redmond, the notorious mountaineer and illicit distiller, spent last night at the Coleman hotel here, en route to Walhalla, where he is engaged with the Belmann distillery in the manufacture of a new brand of whisky called "Redmond's Moonshine." He is suffering from consumption, contracted in the Albany New York state prison, from which he was pardoned about one year ago. One lang is almost entirely gone, and his voice very much impaired. He is quiet and retiring in manner; dresses very plain, but neat. Upon the urgent request of number of the suests of the hotel, he related a few of his encounters with the officials of the revenue department, and left the general impression that he is not half so bad a man as he is credited to be, and much better than many who were once his pursuers.

PORTER DENOUNCED. A Drunken Blackguard and a Colossa

Liar.

MONTGOMERY, Ala., August 5.—[Special.]—
The man who cut Norman Porter in this city on the night of the 26th of April, has come to light. His name is Charles S. Lucas, and he is a farmer residing near Mount Meiggs, in Montgomery county. Porter's version of the difficulty was that Jefferson Davis said that he thinked God he had lived to see Lincoln and Graut dead and in hell; that he said Davis himself ought to have been dead twenty years ago, whereupon a man in the crowd rushed upon him and cut him. Lucas makes affidavit to the effect that the row occurred in a barroom; that Porter was drunk and used profane and abusive language to him (Lucas); that the name of Jeff Davis was not mentioned, and that he used a pen-knife on Porter. He denounces Porter as a drunken hlager quard and a colossal liar.

There is very little excitement noticeable in official circles. Newspapers antagonistic to the administration of President Disz are carefully selecting and reprinting clippings from the more violent American border papers with the intention of making mischief. Considerable uneasiness has been manifested among American residents here interested in property investments, and numerous inquiries as to the status of the case at Washington are made by this class daily at the American legation. The general daily at the American legation. The general tone of comment among leading American citizens is very moderate, and it is generally believed. judging from the evidence that has reached here, that Cut-ting is amenable for offenses committed on both sides of the border. Foreign diplomats are watching the case with great interest and seem to regard Cutting as having taken pains to show contempt for the Mexican court in circulating his attack on it in the Mexican town of Paso del Norte.

is the correspondent of a paper at Moscow, Russis, and, it is said, was imprisoned there on account of his connection with the nihilistic movement. Walkoff has worked as a reporter of the Daily News, and at one time was connected with the Arbeiter Zeitung. He was at Haymarket on the evening of May 4, but only for a few minutes. He testified that he was at Zepf's hall when the bomb exploded, and that he saw Parsons there five minutes before the bomb exploded, and Parsons, Mrs. Parsons and Mrs. Holmes were there at the time the bomb exploded.

On cross-examination it was shown that the witness had his letters addressed to the care of Justus Schwab, in New York, and that he was rooming with Balthauser Rau, anarchist, at the time of the riot, and before that he lived with Schwab, one of the defendants. When he left Russia, in 1882, his bed room was searched by the police. Since his stay here he had contributed money to the Alarm.

Witness said he was not a nihilist or agent for any society in Russia. He was working for the Moscow Gazette.

The presecution here offered in evidence a letter written by witness to Spies. The letter is in substance an inquiry as to whether or not Spies could use certain articles written by Malkoff. It goes on to say: "I have just completed another article treating of the secret revolutionary societies of Russia. I am a proletarian in the fullest sense of the word. Address your letter to J. H. Schwab, 50, First street, New York." Witness said he did not use the term "proletarian" in the souse in which socialists always employ the term, but he understood it to mean a man without any means of support.

The proceedings this afternoon were in the The serveleer articularly in the article.

means of support.

The proceedings this afternoon were in the main featureless, particularly in the earlier rain featureless, particularly in the earner part.

At last Henry Spies, brother to Spies, the accused, took the stand. There was nothing sensational in his testimony except his statement under oath that the story he told the officers who were sent to arrest him and told the state's attorney afterward was a fabrication from beginning to end. Witness said in effect that though he was at the meeting from beginning to end, and all of this time in sight of his brother, he did not once see Schwab. This contradicted the statement of Thompson, witness for the state, who said Spies and of his brother, he did not once see Schwab. This contradicted the statement of Thompson, witness for the state, who said Spies and Schwab, previous to speaking, walked together from the wagon to Union street and back. Witness then related how he stood beside the wagon during the speaking; how when the bomb exploded, he helped his brother to alight from the wagon and how he struck down a revolver aimed at his brother, and receiving the ball in his own body. He became separated from his brother and went home to have his wound dressed. He declared his brother remained in the wagon during the entire meeting which contradicts Gilmer's testimony.

Colonel Robert Whitfield and Hon, Seaborn Roese ap-peared for the prosecution. Judge Sanford and Colonel Grieve were for the defense. Out of seven panels a jury was obtained, and the case proceeded to trial. The grand jury had rotten a bill of indictment for murder against Frank Humphries for murder, and nothing was left but to try him.

THE EVIDENCE DAMAGING. Mr. Elisha Humphries, half brother of the ccused, was sworn and followed by several witnesses, all of whom tended to weave a wel of very damaging evidence about the unfortunate man. Both the prosecution and the defense used every effort to get out a complete statement of the evidence. Mrs. Humphries is present with three children, two boys and a girl; the eldest is nine years old. The wife is four years older than her husband. He is nearly thirty. He looks cheerful and hopeful. He listens without emotion to the recital of facts concerning the dreadful tragedy. Dr. Hardeman swore that Miss Ella Humphries's body had been outraged after the fatal shot. Other witnesses corroborated that evidence. Hamphries's eyes have a wild and hunted look about them. He is evidently fully conscious of the jeapardy in which hangs his life. Capain Ennis swore that he found in a desk at Humphries' house, shells with wads cut from the same piece. He got the shoes hidden behind sacks of cotton. Humphries at last pro-duced the shirt, undershirt, drawers and pants with blood stains on them. The garments were exhibited in court with mud and blood on them. The piece of sleeve missed from his dress shirt was found by A. J. Wall and Turner Benford, which was also shown. After examining Benford touching the prisoner's sanity, the prosecution rested.

As they were about to enter it a large house cat jumped on the dogs and soon put house cat jumped on the dogs and soon put them to flight, nearly tearing the ears off of one. THE BOLD ROBBERY

Which is Exciting the People of Montgomery County.

MT. VERNON, Ga., August 5.—[Special]—
The Monitor, issued this evening, gives the full details of the robbery of a safe, of which meagre reports have been printed heretofore.
About 9 o'clock Tuesday night, July 27, five masked men drove up to the residence of Sandy Wilkes, about fifteen miles northeast of this place, with a mule and wagon. Forcing everyone on the premises except old Sandy Wilkes into his house, after searching it for arms, as was supposed, they locked them in. Then one of the party took uncle Sandy in tow and marched him to the rear of the house and made him stand with his back to the house, guarding him with cocked gun.

house, guarding him with cocked gun.

In the front yard stood a small house used by Sandy Wilkes as a doctor shop. In that shop stood a money safe belonging to C. A. Mosely, one of Montgomery county's heayiest tax payers. In that safe, securely locked were the hard earnings of a long life—seven thousand dollars in money, besides the title papers to all his lands, and a large amount of notes, accounts and other valuable. Sandy Wilkes had about the same amount of money in the safe, and his son had several thousand dollars in it. making eighteen thousand dollars in safe, and his son had several housand dollars in it, making eighteen thousand dollars in cash that the tafe contained.

The safe was was quickly, though not hurriedly, lifted by the four burglars into the wagen. Then Sandy Wilkes was forced into the house, the door relocked, the inmates of the house warned not to come out till next the houte warned not to come out till next morning, and the party drove away with their rich prize.

Next morning a party of the neighbors started in pursuit. The wagon was easily tracked, as it had rained that night and the ground was soft. They followed it without difficulty, as it kept the road, going in the direction of Long Pond, which is seven miles south of Mt. Vernon. At Long Pond it left the main road and took a settlement road for a half mile or so, then wound its way through the woods back to the public road, and down that to the residence of Tobe Mozo, beyond which it could not be traced. In Mozo's lot was found a one-horse wagon, but no trace of was found a one-horse wagon, but no trace of the safe. Mozo was arrested, but feigned drunkenness, throwing the officer off his guard and made good his escape Thursday night.

A mule was found that was supposed to be the one that pulled the wason. It was in the possession of N. B. Gibbs. He was arrested and promptly gave bond for his appearance at the committing trial, which was set for Monday, August 2d. Mr. Mozely has offered a reward of a thousand dollars for the recovery of the safe and its contents, and five hundred for the arrest of Mezo and his delivery to the sheriff of Montgomery county. These facts added fuel to the excitement which was already at fever heat, and little else has been spoken of by our excited populace for now over a week. Mr. Mczely, though a man of wealth, is left in a zorry plight, three dollars and ninety cents being all the ready cash the bur-glars left kim. His credit, however, is good, and he can reise a much more as he week. and he can raise as much money as he wants; and the reward of $500 will be paid promptly upon Mozo's ariest. On Monday, when the case against Gibbs came up for trial at Long Pond, defendant asked for a continuance to a continuance to a continuance. rend, derendant asked for a continuance to a future day for lack of his counsel, Colonel B. B. Cheney, who failed to put in an appearance. The state was represented by Carswell and Sutton, and as some of the witnesses for the presecution were gone to Savannah and would not be back under a week, the case was con-tinued until next Wednesday, the defendant put under good bond in the meantime.

From the Athens Ga Banner. "Who is the richest man in Athens." we yesterday asked of a gentleman who is posted on such matters.

"Ferdinand Phinizy, by a big majority," was the reply.
"Is he worth half a million?"

"Nearer two millions. Ten years ago he had $600,000 in stocks and bonds, besides his other vast presessions, and his wealth is accumulating very fast. His income now I know to be $10,000 a month, and as Mr. Painizy lives a plain life for a man of his wealth, he does not begin to spend it. Besides he is one does not begin to spend it. Besides, he is one of the best business men in Georgia, and makes a great deal by trading. A short time since, on an investment of $10,000 he doubled bis money in less than a year."

"How does he invest his surplus cash?" "I'll venture the assersion that he has now arranged in his mind where he shall place every dollar for the next six months. He never lets his money lay idle, but has always a place ready at hand to place it. Mr. Phinay has the most wonderful financial brain of any man I ever knew. Why, he will work a hundred hands, and never keep a memorandum book. He will let them have change as they need it, and at the end of the month, when he comes to settle, tell each man exactly what he was paid and when he got it. He never forgets anything, and if he owes you a nickel in a settlement will remember it and pay it to you. Mr. Phinizy is very plain in his habits, and if the poorest man in Georgia should come to his home he will treat him with just as much courtesy and honor as he would the president of the United States. He makes no destinction in persons. One man to him is just as good as another, so he is honest and truthful. Mr. Phinizy, too, is a charitable man, but he never makes a display izy has the most wonderful financial brain of charitable man, but he never makes a display of his gifts. What he does is in a quiet un-ostentious manner. He is a man of great determination, and will not put his money determination, and will not put his money into anything unless he is given a controlling voice. If it was not for him the North-Eastern railroad would never have been built. It was his money and influence that made this road a success. Mr. Phinzy is certainly a wonderful man, and some day, when the spirit moves him, he will, with his vast wealth, leave in some great enterprise a lasting monument to his memory in Athens."

The Enthusiastic South. From the New York Indicator.

We can very well pardon the enthusiasm of our southern friends which leads them into the be-lief that the south will eventually absorb all the wealth-producing industries that now enrich the east. Such enthusiasm bodes only good for the people smong whom it exists, and without harmeast. Such enthusiasm bodes only good for the people among whom it exists, and without harming any one else. It also is a most significant fact to show that the south is now progressing and prospering. We can see in this development of the south a complete revolution in the relations of people in the different sections, and, in fact, a complete wiping out of sections. We anticipate the time when New Orleans will stand toward New York shout as Boston does only a little for.

complete wiping out of sections. We anticipate the time when New Orleans will stand toward New York about as Boston does, only a little further away. The hum of trade will drown every discordant note, let it arise from what it may. We do not believe that we are indulging in any day dream for alre dy the beginning of the end has manifested itself.

The south is making astonishing strides toward wealth, and promises to be for many years to come the most desirable field for both capital and labor that our country offers. That the south should suddenly spring into activity is as agreeable as it is opportune. With a narrowing of the channels of investment, and a cutting down of the rate of interest observed north, east and west, and not only in this country but Europe, it is the most desirable thing that could happen now for the south to come forward as a bidder for money and labor to develop its vast resources. It means prosperily for the whole country. There are railroads to be constructed, not in new and uninhabited territory, but through country teeming with population and dotted with populous cities. And there are mills to be built and manufacturers of all kinds to be started for all of which money will be forthcoming as fast as needed, for money is more anxious to find employment than at any previous time in the country's history.

As I sit writing I remember those in my city who years ago started with and before me to reach the first round of the ladder and today I can count twenty-nine machine shops, all of which with one exception are owned and controlled by men who started with no capital but a good stock of energy, ambition and industry. I can also recall not less than fifteen sash, door and blind shops and planing mills that with no exceptions are today owned and operated by "practical mechanics who started out working in the very factories they now own.

The families of the deceased members of the regiment, and all other veterans, are invited to participate. Solicitor George F. Gober has demonstrated that Cobb county is well adapted to raising clover. Off of two and a half acres he gath-ered recently forty-five one-horse loads of clover and stored it away. He also gave some away. This is a good yield. He does not allow his clover patch to be used as a pasture, because it has a tendency to kill it out.

A case of interest has recently been decided in Schley county. The Buena Vista and Ella-ville railroad issued a pass to G. T. Walker on account of the Sumter Republican for publish ing the schedules. After being used for som time, on the 19th of June the conductor took up the pass, although it did not expire until December 31st. Mr. Walker sued for the pass, and the court decided that it was rightfully his property.

Columbus Sun: A white man, whose name

we could not learn, was strolling around in the northern part of the city yesterday, claiming to be God. He said that the world was coming to an end soon, and he wanted to get all of his relatives, who lived near Dadeville, Ala., to congregate at once at a church in Harris county, where they will be free from all danger. Those who saw the young man think he is a fit subject for the lunatic asylum. If he is not insane he certainly has a very exalted opinion of himself. Two white men had a fight in the northwest part of Macon county Monday, which resulted in one man, Jones getting his head terribly pummeled with the jaws of a heavy knife in the hands of his assailant, named Harper. The fight occurred about what Jone's wife said of Harper, who agreed to the remark and knocked Harper down. The latter then used his knife handle and made Jones an object of interest to his fellow men. Harper then left with two officers after him, pulling his pistol he ordered them to return. Being un armed they took his advice and went back to console with Jones. The Brunswick Herald says: The idea that yellow pine is played out in south Georgia is absurd. Nowhere else in all the world can larger trees be obtained than around Bruns-wick. James Holmes, of this city, has a contract with the Hilton Timber and Lumber company, at Doboy, to furnish the largest hewn timber in the world. No tree is to be less than seventy feet long and nineteen inches square at the small end. These he ob-tains in abundance on Woolly island, the property of John Ward, of this city, and for each one he pays $5 for a piece. His base of operations is Jamaica, this county, and it takes twenty-four yoke of oxen to haul each tree, and then only three trees are hauled to and then only three trees are halled to Jamaica in two weeks. Each tree, when hewn and hauled to the point of shipping, brings Holmes $110.

Thursday night last two unknown men went to the house of Mr. H. B. Wofford and wife, an aged couple in Cobb county, on the Canton road, and were denied admission. Later in the night Mrs. Wofford was aroused from her slumbers by some one getting in at the window. There were two persons, and they handed in two guns, an axe and some pine kindling. She attempted to pine kindling. She attempted to wake her husband by quietly shaking him, but failing to do so, she began to scream, and the intruders fled out of the house into the darkness. Neighbors attracted by Mrs. Wofford's screams, went over to her house and began to screams, went over to her house and began to make investigations. Sheriff Coryell was notified and went out and arrested Joe Gregory, colored, and placed him in jail. Others will doubtless be arrested. The evidence is circumstantial. It is thought that the parties was bent on murdering the old folks, robbing were bent on murdering the old folks, robbing them of their supposed money hoarded, and then burn the house and destroy all evidence of their two-fold crime. Three other negroes have been arrested, and had their trials before Justice McClesky, in Gritter district Wednesday.

Mrs. William Everidge, a lady living nea Cartersville, was fearfully gored by a crum-Cartersville, was fearfully gored by a crumpled horn cow a few days ago. It seems that upon going out into the yard she saw a cow in the lot trying to hook a negro woman. The negro was in close corners, and Mrs. Everidge immediately went to her rescue, whereupon the cow left the negro and began goring Mrs. Everidge with all the viciousness characteristic with the brute. The negro sought safety beyond the fence, leaving her rescuer at the mercy of the cow. Soon Mrs. Everidge lay prostrate beneath the feet of the merciless brute, whose rage seemed to increase ten-fold with every death-intended stroke of the harns. No one being nearer than a half mile except the negro, who would not attempt mile except the negro, who would not attempt to assist her, it seemed that nothing but Mrs. Everidge's death would satisfy the cow's thirst for the life blood of its victim. Fortunately for the life blood of its victim. Fortunately Mrs. Everidges son, who was in a field about a half mile away, heard the screams, and hurried to the horrible scene. Driving the cow away he managed to get the bruised and al-most lifeless form of his mother into the house. The cow's horns had brass knobs on them, and therefore the fiesh was not torn, but the bruises were so great that Mrs. Everidge'c con-dition is considered dangerous.

An Enchanting Newport Vision. From the Boston Herald.

Miss Stevens, of Philadelphia, was one of the most enchanting of Newport beauties at the Casino yesterday morning. She is tall, dark and handsome, with a fine carriage and a superb figure, which is at once the envy and admiration of all her rivals; and she wore on this occasion a gown of white lawn, touched with enough Irish point to preserve it from too great simplicity. About her slender waist she wore a belt of mignonette green, fastened with such an old-fashioned gold buckle as her grandmother might have owned, and at the back a huge moire sash of the same color, which, by the way, is extremely fashionable just now. Her hat was a poke of shirred white muslin, with a spray of some white flower in front, her gloves were long and yellow; her shoes patent leather and her silk stockings black; while the parasol she swung lightly in one hand was of white moire. Words can describe her attire, but not her air, as she crossed the smooth-shaven lawn. Every one looked at her as she passed by, and every one acknowledged her loveliness. She is singularly free from vanity for one who receives so much homsge and attention and the wonder is that her head has not been completely turned ere Miss Stevens, of Philadelphia, was one of

THE RAILROADS.

New and Important Traffic Combinations in

The Railway Register, speaking of traffic alliances in the south, says: It is probable that new and important traffic alliances will be entered into between the southwestern lines and the trunk lines cast of the Mississippi and south of the Ohio.

The effect of the construction of the new road from Arkansas City down the river of that name to Fort shifth will be to cause more of the products of Kansas and Nebraska to seek an outlet to the scaboard through the southern states. The timber of the south will compete with that fron a the north in the market of these western states.

The Queen and Crescent route is seeking to make an arrangement with the Texas roads, particularly the Texas and Pacific, for a more extensive interchange of business. The Vicksburg, Shreveport and Pacific is the natural extension east of the Texas and Pacific and it has another valuable concetion in the Houston and Shreveport line, which passes through a rich sugar and cotton country. The Huntington line is working industriously to divert more of the through business from the other routes. Against the coast and southern trunk lines between the lower Mississippi country and the north are piaced the various routes connecting St. Louis and Chicago with Texas and the southwest. In somewhat the same way the railways running southwest from Kansas to the Atlantic coast are crowding the older central and northern, east and west trunk lines.

We cannot doubt that the result is to be new combinations and alliances, making sharper the present competition between trade centers and the regions of food production. To what extent the south Atlantic ports are to be built up by this northern and western trade is uncertain, but it is safe to count on the fact that changes are impending in the routes of commerce, and the findividuals and municipalities are to be most prospered who can best discount the future in this respect.

HE DESERVES IT.

Compliment to Master of Trains J. J. Kress. A correspondent, in a letter to the Monroe Advertiser, pays a well-deserved compliment to Mr. J. J. Kress, master of trains of the Georgia div.sion of the East Tennessee, Virginia and Geor-gis railroad. He writes.

Next day at 12:15 p. m. we boarded the train No. 14 on the East Tennessee, Virginia and Georgia railroad for Chattanooga. Half an hour before starting a gentle rain set in, laid the dust and gave us a most delightful ride to our journeys end which we reached at 6:15 p. m. There is no lagging by the way of this road. Its sharp curves, rapid speed, coupled with its dark tunnels, lofty traitles, deep cuts and striking seenery keep one stirred up at do nthe alert all the way. This road seems to be in first class condition. Its officers are courteous and capable, being wide awake to the interests of the road and the comfort of passengers. Much of this improved condition of things is due to Mr. Kress, master of trains between Atlanta and Chattanooga. It is considered that there is no more capable or efficient officer connected with the road in any of its divisions. Mr. Kress has control of all the conductors and engineers between Atlanta and Chattanooga. Judging from the prompitess and regularity with which connections are made, the comfortable condition of the passenger trains, the politeness of conductors and the carefulness of engineers, Mr. Kress has all the details of his position well in hand and manages them with rare skill and fidelity.

Louisville and Nashville Enterprise. gia railroad. He writes.

Colonel C. P. Atmore, general passenger colonel C. P. Atmore, general passenger sgent of the Louisville and Nashville, has completed the arrangement with the Memphis and Little Rock whereby will be inaugurated a system of through sleepers in addition to the Washington service. The through sleepers will run from Little Rock, where connection will be made with Iron Mountain trains. The move is for the purpose of competing for a share of the southwestern ousiness in opposition to the Queen and Crescent, which has lately put on a sleeper from Shreveport via Vicksburg through Newport and Washington.

More Southern Railways. The extension of the Fort Scott and Gulf system to Birmingham, Ala., is likely to be followed by the construction of other new railways in the south, which will round out the existing facilities and supply connections for which there has long been a need.

HEADLIGHT FLASHES. Improvements are in progress in the ladies' waiting room at the union passenger depot.

Travel over the Piodmont Air-Line is very heavy, especially to Western North Carolina.

Mr. J. W. Leith, traveling passenger agent of the Texas and St. Louis railroad, is in the city. Major J. W. Johnson, president of the Georgia Pacific railroad, went east, yesterday at-ternoon, via the Piedment Air-Line. He was ac-companied by his family.

Mr. Joseph M. Brown, general passenger gent of the Western and Atlantic railroad, has saued a very handsome pamphlet detailing the attractions of Marietta as a summer resort. Passenger train No. 1, on the Western and Atlantic railroad, left the city yesterday crowded with passengers for northern summer resorts. There were novacant berths in the sleepers.

Mr. A. W. Gibbs has been appointed master mechanic of the Atlanta and Charlotte division Piedmont Air-Line, with headquarters at Atlanta. Mr. T. W. Gentry has been transferred to Richmond.

Mr. R. D. Wade, superintendent of motive power of the Piedmont Air-Line has been relieved from the direct charge of the shops at Manchester, and will hereafter have his office at the general office in Washington. He will exercise general supervi-lon of the machinery department on all divisions.

HARD TO BELIEVE.

Restored to Life by the Rubbing Process After Decomposition Had Set In. CHARLEVOIN, Mich., August 5.—Arza Campbell is one of the best known citizens of Charlevolx town and county. For years he was engaged in active business here, and acquired a competency. About twelve months since Mr. Campbell was stricken with paralysis and has suffered excru-ciatingly most of the time. Two weeks ago his ciatingly most of the time. Two weeks ago his malady developed more alarming symptoms, and his family was in constant attendance upon him. Friday he died. There is no question as to thishe died, and his physician, one of the most regular of regular practitioners, admitted the fact. Mrs. Campbell, as a dernier resort, sent out for Mrs. Sweetland, a metaphysicai "curer." temporarily located in this city, and that lady promptly responded to the cail. However, when she reached the house decomposition had already set in, possibly growing out of the nature and complexity of the disease from which Mr. Campbell had suffered, and the stench emitted from the body was fearful.

fered, and the stench emitted from the body was fearful.

Mrs. Sweetland, who is an intelligent, sad-eyed lady, ordered disinfectants to be liberally applied to the rooms, and she placed herseif beside the corpse. For twenty minutes she gently rubbed the body, muttering prayers of incantations meanwhile, and then the dead man's eyes opened. He tried to speak, but was unable. The rubbing process was continued twenty minutes longer, at the end of which time the corpse sat upright, and in three hours he was chatting with the family. Mr. Campbell is now enjoying greater freedom from pain than at any time since his first illness, and his paysician, who applitted that he was dead, expresses himself as non-plused. Mr. Campbell is unable to express his feelings while in a state of death. He said he left the earth, but it is impossible to say or describe the place to which he journeyed.

"Now, here is an instance," said the editor, pointing to a proof sheet: "You have written. "Illinois will not get Hennepla money this year." That sentence could be simplified. You might say, "Illinois gets no pin money this year." Bear this in mind, Mr. Ymmer, and make your sentences direct and concise."

THE value of timber, when worked, may be judged from the fact that pine trees, sold in southwest Georgia, are worth, when conveyed to Brunswick, $110. Those trees are never less than seventy feet long.

An election on the whisky issue will take place in Brooks county on the 17th. The recent decisive victories against the prohibitionists in Thomas and Lowndes counties will have the effect, it is believed, of defeating the prohibitionists in Brooks also.

HON. HENRY G. TURNER has secured a majority of the delegates to the convention of the second congressional district. This secures his renomination and re-election. The delegates as elected stand: Turner 20, Guerry 12, Mitchell 4, and Jones 2.

THE difference between the moral courage of whites and blacks was lately illustrated in Bartow county. A white lady seeing a colored woman in danger of losing her life from the attack of a mad cow, took part and attracted the animal's attention. The cow then turned upon the white lady, while the colored woman had no idea of reciprocating the service, but fled from the field.

THE action, or rather non-action, of those in charge, in the Cutting case, is humiliating to every citizen of the United States. Ignoring the formal demands of this government, Mexico still holds in confinement a citizen of this country for a misdemeanor enacted in Texas. After a few hours discussion of the question, congress put it aside and adjourned sine die. Secretary Bayard continues to express, in emphatic terms, what he will do, but does absolutely noth ing. Not a word has been heard from our minister in Mexico, and while the whole country feels justly outraged at the summary proceedings of the Mexican authorities, not a hand is lifted in defense of our bonor and pride as a nation. It makes no difference as to who Cutting is, or what be his offense, he is an American unjustly confined in a Mexican prison, and he should be released if it takes the whole of the army of the United States to do it. If the government don't move soon, the states must individually protect themselves

Georgia Granite and Cincinnati Polities.

It is understood that the political gang which controls Cincinnati has rejected Georgia granite for paving purposes, and the con-tractors have been ordered to put none of it down. THE CONSTITUTION is not at all surprised at this. When the Commercial Gazette, edited by Murat Halstead, began its campaign against the Georgia granite, we felt sure that it had no chance. Just how much Halstead has been paid, it is impossible to say, but it is enough to know that he has been the monthpiece of the ring which was interested in driving Georgia granite out of Cincinnati.

The gentlemen who came here and examined our streets, and who went to Stone Mountain and investigated the whole matter thoroughly, reported in favor of the Georgia granite. But there were other interests to e subserved, and when it became known to the republican ring of Cincinnati that Georfile granite was about to be used in paving the streets of Cincinnati, there was a grea howl, in which the voice of Murat Halstead as pltogether the loudest. It has recently ed in the Enquirer that Halstead has been engaged in the beautiful pastime of roping in women to perjure themselves in behalf of the republican ring, and for the past week hardly an issue of the Commercial Gazette has come to hand that did not contain a personal editorial card, signed "M. H." The style of these cards is very muddy, and the English altogether exasperating, and for this reason we suppose they are from the pen of Halstead himself; but why should Halstead be opposed to Georgia granite except for political purposes?

His paper has denounced the south as vile beyond comparison, and, therefore, it stands to reason that Georgia granite must be peculiarly corrupt. Would it look well to have a republican city paved with corrupt Georgia granite? This is about the nature of the argument we have observed in the Commercial Gazette, and its success in the mat ter convinces us that it has the democratic "white niggers" of Cincinnati under its thumb.

But if Georgia granite enters so largely into republican politics, why is it that the trade of the south with Cincinnati doesn't also enter into democratic politics? Are the democratic "white niggers" of Cincinnati to be duplicated by the democratic "white niggers" of Georgia and of the south? This is a question that deserves attention. This whole section trades with Cincinnati with-- to politics; but when there is a question of paving the streets of Oincinnati with Georgia granite, immediately the cry of kuklux and southern corruption is raised and Ceorgia granite is thrown out. We have heard a good deal of northern doughfaces, but the generation of doughfaces in the south is quite as large as that of the north; for while Cincinnati continues to sit down on Georgia and the south, the southern doughfaces continue to "set up" the shekels for Cincinnati. If Cincinnati will continue to carry out her policy of proscription, she will have the trade of every southern firm before a great while.

The Pierce-Weaver Mystery. The Pierce-Weaver mystery has been solved to the satisfaction of all concerned The Indianapolis lady is not a widow as she supposed, for her husband has been fully identified and is yet in the land of the living.

Mr. W. I. Ripley, who came to Atlanta yesterday as the representative of Mrs. J. P. Weaver, of Indianapolis, met the alleged Weaver and identified him. The two men had known each other long and intimately and their meeting yesterday settled the identity of the living man. That leaves no further doubt as to the identity of the horse-trader who was killed at the seventeen-mile tank on the Georgia Pacific last December. That man was J. W. Pierce, of Texas. This conclusion was reached by the court when the case was first tried, but all doubt was not cleared away until yesterday.

It is to be regretted that the case does not end yet. A good deal of litigation is expected. Mr. Weaver is to sue the men who caused his arrest in Chattanooga on a charge of personating another, and will also sue th Pierce estate for damages. Mr. Ladson, counsel for Mrs. Pierce, threatens to have Weaver arrested for living with a certain Mrs. Eden outside of lawful wedlock, and it is said that a man in Chattanooga is waiting to have Weaver arrested, on his return to that city, because Weaver has been imposing on a respectable family by representing Mrs. Eden as his wife. Weaver also threat ens to prosecute for perjury the man who swore out the warrant charging him with personating another.

It will be seen that the people who are litigating over the remains of the unfortu nate owner of the Arabian mare, "Gipsy" are doomed to have a warm time of it.

The Silver Standard.

Mr. Hewitt, in opposing the adoption of the Morrison surplus resolution in its amended shape, declared that its inevitable effect would be to place the country on a silver hasis. From the tenor of his remarks, Mr. Hewitt evidently looks on such a contingency with some degree of alarm, viewing it as in the nature of a calamity.

But would such a result prove to be calam tous to the people? There are a great many thoughtful persons who do not believe it would. It is evident to all who take an interest in the matter that the continual depreciation of silver is largely due to the attacks that have been made on the silver dollar in this country. The sole purpose of the eastern capitalists in making these attacks is to drive the country to the single gold standard; but the efforts of Wall street have proved to be in the nature of a boomerang If there is to be a single standard in this country, silver will undoubtedly be that Perceiving this, the golebugs and their organs have recently been very mild in their attacks on silver. They feel that to increase the pressure will bring about the very result which they are extremely anxious to avoid It is a matter, after all, that will settle itself, but it could have been settled much more reasonably if congress had opened the mints to silver as it has to gold.

Crops in the Northwest.

For five or six weeks a terrible drouth has existed in the northwest. In certain localities in Kansas, Iowa and Wisconsin, a few drops of rain have fallen, but there has been no general rain in the corn belt.

Our advices report the situation as not only critical but filled with the promise of disaster. No amount of rain now can make any perceptible difference in the final out come. The present drouth is said to be even more severe than that of 1881. Our Little War at Home.

While we are discussing the possibility of war with Mexico, it should not be forgotten that we already have our share of bellig erent disturbances on our own soil.

Only a few days ago an anti-prohibition leader was shot and killed in Mississippi by the opposite party. Such outrages naturally provoke others, and it will surprise no one to learn that the Mississippi affair was followed in Iowa by the killing of a Methodist preacher, who had taken an active part in e prosecution of saloon cases.

This is a pretty state of affairs. We are inclined to berate the Mexicans because they are lawless and regardless of the rights of others, but whither are we drifting? When honest differences of opinion on a question of moral reform lead to assassination, it is about time to place every reformer and antireformer under bonds to keep the peace. A free ballot is better than a free fight, and in a country like ours there is no excuse for a resort to Mexican methods.

The Summer Outlook. The recent snow storm in New Hampshire has caused many of the weather wise to pre dict the early advent of cold weather.

If one swallow does not make a summer it follows that one snow storm does not make winter. The New York Herald, a capital weather authority, thinks that the New Hampshire flurry means nothing, but it thoughtfully advises the summer resorters to supply themselves with warmer clothing as there is no telling what a day may bring

We must not allow one cool wave to destroy our confidence in the due course of the seasons. While we may have an earlier fall than usual, it is safe to say that summer costumes will be needed for a long time yet. Down this way it will be literally a cold day for most people when straw hats are called in before the first of October. The eccentric conduct of New Hampshire need not disturb us. Those who enjoy warm weather will be happy for several weeks to

The Anti-Tobacco Craze.

The St. Louis Christian Advocate thinks that the anti-tobacco movement is designed to divert attention from religious and moral reforms by exciting prejudice against some of the leading reformers who are addicted to the use of that weed. It says:

Well, the use of tobacco may be a very bad thing Doubtless it is, in the estimation of many, yet there were Bishops Soule, Hedding, Morris, Andrew, Paine, Capers, Bascom, Pierce, Wightman, Marvin and others of the dead that might be named, to gether with such scholars as A. T. Bledsoe and suc moral and political heroes as Lovick Pierce and Andrew Jackson. None of whom could be regarded as drunkards, nor weak minded, nor imbeciles nor filthy, nor ill-mannered, nor of bad morals. Yet that they all used tobacco we know, and that they were regarded as good and great men we also know. Still they may not have enjoyed the light that illumines these latterday saints, yet compare these saints with them, would like comparing the Rocky mountains to a set of mole bills, or the proud bird of Jove to a "fly-up-

Complimentary to a Young Atlantian. Atlanta Correspondence Augusta Chronicle. Now that the smoke of the recent politica struggle has cleared from the battle field, differences have been forgotten and the people of Georgia form once more a united political family, it is not amiss that some of the misapprehension ated during the bitterness of the campaign should be corrected. There is none that it gives me more personal pleasure to correct than the general mi apprehension abroad in the state in reference t Mr. Frank M. O'Bryan. It was my pleasure to be Mr. Frank M. It was my pleasure to be thrown with his young gentleman in all the various vicisitudes of day and night travel during the joint canvass between Major Bacon and General Gordon and, though on the opposite side of the question from him, never met a more homest, genial, open-hearted, courteous and enthusiastic fellow. He accompanied General Gordon as the representative of the Gordon central campaign committee in Atlanta. In each town he met the Gordon leaders, gave them hints on organization, supplied them with campaign literature, and obtained the names of persons in the county to whom letters and documents should be sent. At the conclusion of the joint canvass he continued his work, sometimes accompanying General Gordon, sometimes conducting a still hunt alone. Before long the county papers took him in hand and he figured as "the Atlanta emissary." "one O'Bryan." "Stephen Dorsey O'Bryan," "dispenser of the Atlanta corruption fund," etc., etc., according to the vocabulary of the editor or the depth of his chagrin at the vote of his county for General Gordon. Now these publications uncorrected might give the impression that Mr. O'Bryan was a very forbidding and objectionable old ogre that ran rough shod over the county, and, by some hocus pocus, made men vote for Gordon whether they wanted to or not. There never was a greater mistake. Frank O'Bryan is a beardless boy of twenty-three years, about five feet six inches high, with a handsome, jolly face, lighted with the merriest, brightest gray eyes and the most attractive manners. He has none of the lean and hungry look about him that Shakspeare attributes to the conspirator, but is rather of that comfortable noid which betokens good living and an easy conscience. GIRLS AND THEIR BABY STARE.

A New Means of Defense Adopted by Inde-From the Cleveland Journal

The baby stare is all the rage in Cleveland among young gentlewomen who have been an noyed by the impertinent ogling of ignorant young men. For example, three young society belies en-ter a street car, and on taking their seats they find themselves confronted by three or more dandy dudes, who at once begin ogling them. Simultasly the young ladles train their batteries With eyes opened to their utmost extent, they stare intensely, each at her vis-a-vis. The stare is absolutely expressionless. The great handsome orbital convey nothing, suggest nothing but a steadfast impenetrable "baby stare." Three of Mrs. Jarley's wax figures would be every bit as impressible as these three beautiful and brilliant young ladies who have assumed the "baby stare" for self protection. Instead of quietly submitting to the impudent ogling that would have been inevitable under ordinary circumstances, they have taken arms against it, and by an artistic empleyment of the unconquerable baby stare, they have put their would-be persecutors to flight. For a momont the impressible fops are pleased at so soon attracting the attention of the fair trio. Experience has taught them that there is some meaning in catching and holding the eye of a strange young lady, and they endeavor to extrect a meaning from the steadiest gaze that they now encounter. It is the first time they have met with the "baby stare." and they are at a loss what to make of it. They suive to meet it with composure and return stare for stare, but they make a dreary failure of it. They make the effort again and again, but with no better results; the fixed, unchangable and mysterious gaze is still upon them. impenetrable "baby stare." Three of Mrs. Jarley's and again, but with no better results; the fixed, unchangable and mysterious gaze is still upon them, but whether it includes them in its view they cannot determine. Then they become nervous, restless and embarrassed, and sweat begins to gather under their high collars. They apply their handkerchiefs to their flushed faces, and being unable to endure the trying ordeal any longer, they find an excuse to retire to the front platform, and endeavor to solace themselves with cigarettes.

Pencil Paragraphs and Editorial Shortst Caught on the Run.

Almost everybody in Atlanta knows Major Sidney Root. Those who don't know him personally have heard of him. But everybody does not know of his remarkable story nor how closely career has been identified with the growth city. What follows was told me by an old Atla ian a few evenings since, and was suggested while on Washington street, as we passed the elegresidence of Mr. E. W. Marsh.

· Do you see that beautiful oak," said he, pointing to the massive tree which stands in the frost yard, and which is famous as the most magnificent shade tree in Atlanta—"well, it was brought ben in a buggy from Stewart county, and planted by Major Sidney Root long before the war. He removed to Atlanta from Stewart county, and brought that tree with him. By the way," confined the speaker, "that men's history has been remarkably closely identified with that of Atlanta At the outbreak of the war he was one of atlanta's leading merchants, and when the war closed he was worth over a million dollars. The firm of Beach & Root, of Atlanta, was known out the south as one of the most important of the government's contractors, and at the lose of hostilities it ranked among the leading from of the south. Beach went to Charlest Liverpool to establish branch houses, and Major Root remained in Atlanta. Each could have then reverses of the government affected them, and this colossal firm soon collapsed. Beach went back to England and the major went in business in New York."

"I was a witness," continued the speaker, "to a will that Major Root made while at the height of his prosperity. He disposed of a million dollars and willed to each of his children the sum of $250,000. He would have been a rich man today, if his confidence in the strength of the confedence ment was in debt to him to a very heavy amount and in settlement left it optional with him to re-ceive his payment in gold or bonds. Believing then at a premium, he took them, and in consequence lost every cent of it. He was always a close and intimate friend of Mr. Davis, and was held in the highest esteem by him and his admin-

Major Root has always been one of the most en-ergetic and pushing citizens of Atlanta, and has always taken the deepest interest in her welfare. It was through him that Washington street was videned and improved years ago and two of the most notable houses on that street were built by him, the Marsh mansion and the residence of Sen tor Brown. The latter he built for himself and the former for his father-in-law, who lived in Stewart county and moved to Atlanta. Judge Marshall J. Clarke, a brother-in law of Major Root, came with his father and grew up with the city.

Speaking of Major Root suggests Grant park, the last enterprise which this active Atlantian has done so much to make successful. As some one remarked of it: "Colonel Grant gave the ground and Major Root made the park.' in this beautiful piece of work erected for himself a monument which will last long after he has gone. In the past two years he has given almost his whole attention to it, and a visit to this mag nificent retreat is a revelation to anyone who has not! seen it. With a meagre appropriation from the city he has already made one of the most beautiful parks in the south, and one which is destined to become one of the most elegant in the country. The city council promised a year for some reason cut it down this year to $3,000, with the understanding that it should have $10,000 next year. This amount could not be better placed

I am told that a number of deer, bears and other animals have been offered the management of the park, and they will be accepted. This zoological feature will be another attraction to the already beautiful grounds. With natural advantages, which other parks have had to spend millions to obtain by art, and such an able man in control as Major Root, Atlanta should have a park which would be a model for the country.

stone Tekes a Seat Facing the Opposition Meeting at Lord Hartington's House-Matthews, the Home Secretary, to be Defeated-Other Interesting News

LONDON, August 5 .- Parliament re-assem aled this afternoon. Mr. Gladstone, when he went into the house of commons, took a seat es front of the opposition bench. His advent ward entered and sat down on the same bench, which was occupied also by Lord Hartington and John Morley, Gladstone's chief secretary for Ireland, Lord Hartington sitting between Merley and Chamberlain. When Mr. Gladgione saw Mr. Chamberlain, the ex-premier grose and went over to the radical dissentient leader, shook hands with him cordially, and held a conversation with him and with Lord Bartington.

Right Hon. Arthur Willesley Peel, liberal member for Warwick and Leamington, was re-elected speaker.

Although the reception of Mr. Glads tone in the house of commons was undemonstrative. be was lustily cheered in the palace yard, both on arriving and leaving. In the Gladstonian circle it is reported that Mr. Gladstone will raise the Irish question in debate on the address in reply to the queen's speech, demanding of the government an explicit statement of its policy. The liberal unionists are not of its policy. The liberal unionists are not ready to support the Gladstonian proposal to limit the time of the government in which to prepare an Irish measure to November. The cabinet will insist that after the estimates cabinet will insist that after the estimates have been granted, parliament will be prorougered until February. The queen's speech will be read on the 19th inst.

A meeting of the liberal unionists was held in the Devonshire house, the residence of Lord in the Devoishire house, the residence of Lyrd Hartington, today. Lord Hartington presided, and smong those present were Messrs. Joseph Chamberlain, Sir Henry James, Messrs. Ri-lands, Caine, Henrage and Jesse Collings, Lord Hartington, in a long speech upon coming parliamentary work, proposed that all attitudes of hostility towards the adherents of the late government be abandoued. The liberal sections should co-operate an endeavor to secure the enactment of useful registation and oppose mitedly all proposals looking to a separation of the empire. He said the consolidation of the party was only a matter of time. [Cheers] Towards that end the unionists should at once identify themselves with the rest of the liberals by taking seats in the house of commons

He said he would willingly accept the leader-ship of Hartington, with whom he was in en-tire and cordial sympathy. He declared that such action as Lord Hartington proposed would speedily restore the unity of the party.
The unionists, he said, were the real victors at the late elections. Mr. Chamberlain's remarks were received with enthusiastic cheers. Messrs. Eylands, Collings and Caine, and ir Henry James also spoke in a similar train. A vote of thanks to Lord Hartington was then passed by acclamation and a resolu-tion was unanimously adopted that the radi-cal and whig unionists should work together and that the leaders who are privy councillors should claim seats in the house of commons on meeting unanimously indorsed the senti-ment of the speakers. while it must freely be conceded that the unionists, if they succeed in their bold effort to reconvert the liberals to old principles, will be doing the country the greatest service, it is vain to ignore the dangers to which their attempt will expose them. The separatists being numerically larger, the tendency will be to absorb the smaller body. Although Hartington and Chamberlain will co-operate on the Irish question, ulterior debates the questions that are certain to be raised will divide them."

the government in the present session, but will endeavor to obtain a statement from the government

For Parliament. BIRMINGHAM, August 5.—Alderman William Cook, as a result of the final conference on the mbject with the radical unionists of Birming-ham, has decided to re-contest East Birming-ham against Henry Matthew, the new home secretary, who has to seek re-election because of his acceptance of a cabinet office. The radicals and unionists in the district, combined with the conservatives on Matthews and elected. conservatives on Matthews and elected him by a narrow majority. His elevation to a cabinet office has much displeased the Birm-ingham tories, because he is a Roman Catholic, and a protege of Cardinal Manning. The radicals and unionits are dissatisfied with Matthews, because they believe he is the willing political instrument of Lord Raudolph Churchill. Hence they have pledged their support to Alderman Cook, in with the cooking t ttempt to break down the conservative cabinet appointment, and they charge what they call a "Chamberlain clique" with treachery to the election compact made between the conervatives, liberal unionists and radical union

JUSTICE IN CHINA.

Cruel Torture of a Prisoner by the Order of a Mandarin in Canton.

From the Correspondence San Francico Examiner. As I entered the court room two stalwart jailers were roughly bringing in a prisoner accused of the crime of piracy. Around the neck of the prisoner was an iron collar, to which an iron chain was attached. One of the jailers was dragging the prisoner along by the chain. and the other was aiding him by pushing and kicking. The accused was taken before the mandarin's desk, made to prostrate himself on the floor, and the trial commenced. The accusation charging the prisoner with piracy was read, and then the mandarin asked him through the interpreters to confess the charge. This the prisoner refused to do, claiming that he was innocent. This seemed to anger the mandarin, and he instructed the lictors to strike the prisoner with their leather thongs. This they did, striking him a number of times on the face with a leather strap two inches wide and a foot in length. This failing to bring the desired answer, the mandarin then ordered the jailers to prepare a torture. An instrument of torture resembling a common bench was then brought in and placed in position on end. From the upper legs of the instrument of torture resembling a common bench was then brought in and placed in position on end. From the upper legs of the bench dangled four stout cords, and near the top of the plank forming the seat was a cloth band about two inches in width and attached to a winch at the back of the board. The prisoner viewed these preparations with a dogged and sullen look. The lictors then seized the prisoner and forced him to kneel with his back against this frame and quickly fastened a cord to each of the large toes of the foot, and, bending back the arms, fastened the other two cords to his thumbs. The cords were now tightened until the prisoner's knees were raised clear of the floor. The band was then placed around the forehead and tightened with a few turns of the winch. The position of the body naturally threw the weight forward and made the pressure on the forehead fearful.

As the cords and bands tightened and the weight of the body was thrown on them, the victim began to show evidence of extreme pain. His breath came heavy and labored, and a deep groan occasionally escaped his lips. In this position he hung for a couple of minutes, and was then again asked by the mandarin if he was guilty of the charge of piracy. He refused to confess. The perspiration was starting out all over his body, the cords were beginning to cut into the flesh, and the muscles were becoming knotted. The mandarin gave, an impatient order to the lictors, and the winch was given a couple of turns tightening the bands around the forehead until the prisoner's eyes seemed to start from their sockets and the flesh on each side of the band was puffed and discolored. Again he was asked to confess and again refused. Another turn of the winch the fiesh on each side of the band was puffed and discolored. Again he was asked to confess and again refused. Another turn of the winch was ordered. The eyes of the suffering man had now rolled back until only the whites were visible; the muscles of his face began to twitch and knot, and froth was collecting around his lips. His groans and writhings were horrible. It seemed as if human senses, could stand no more. A few more turns of the winch and the band would crush in the skull. The muscles of the arms and legs stood out The muscles of the arms and legs stood out rigid and knotted from the weight of the body. Once more he was asked to confess. This time he hesitated and then shrieked out that time be hesitated and then shrieked out tust he would confess anything they desired if they would but take him from this horrid rack. The mandarin, therefore, ordered the lictors to release him from the rack. This they did muce inthe same manner as a stevedore, hardles sacks of grain. They untied the cords and loosend the band, allowing the prisoner to fail in a heap on the floor. The tortured man's face had lost the semblance of a human being. Distorted by the pain and agony endured, with Mark lay and writaed and cursed and gnash-Mark lay and writed and cursed and gnashed his teeth. He cried shoo and beat upon the headboard. He got up and threw things under the bed, and walked around the room and wrung his hands and moistened his profanity with tears of impotent exasperation. The mouse still gnawed and Twain put on his clothes and went forth and paced the streets till morning, leaving his tormentor to revel in bed.

"Hallo, Sam, what have you been doing?"

"Hallo, Sam, what have you been doin?" asked Gillis another night, startled out of real sleep this time and sitting up in bed. And no wonder he was startled. Mark, undressed, had just entered the room. In his hand be held a Japanese sword, as sharp as a razor, a prized gift from Bayard Taylor. This weapon was dripping with blood. The clock midnight.
"D—— n him, he'll never crow again," exulted the assassin; but even as he crawled into bed the offending rooster sent forth a cock-adoodle-do that caused Mark to give a howl of foiled vengeance and bury his head under the blankets. In the morning it was discovered that his one furious stroke in the chicken house had bereft eight hens of their heads, but the rooster had escaped. He owed his life to the fortunate circumstance that he slept—or rather crowed—at the end of the perch faithest from the door of the coop.
"Steve! Steve, I say! wake up!" came a voice and furious whisper at 2 a. m.

Mr. Gillis awoke and beheld Mr. Clemens, clad only in his shirt, standing by the open window. The night was cold and Mr. Clemens was shivering violently. In his shaking hand was a revolver.

window. The night was cold and Mr. Clemens was shivering violently. In his shaking hand was a revolver.

"Steve," he pleaded, "you're warm and your nerve is good. Get up and shoot this cat for me. I've been out in the yard for an hour trying to get a bead on the brute, and now that he's there on the fence I can't kill him—oh, I know I can't kill him. Get up, Steve, do."

"Oh, let the cat alone."

"What? You won't get up? Then, Steve Gillis, I'll shoot you. I'm shaky, but I can do that if I can't hit the cat!"
And Mr. Gillis arose and slew the cat in self defense, and Mark Twain went out and brought in a bottle and sat up till sunrise to celebrate the execution. Mark Twain and Dan De Quille roomed to gether in early Comstock days. One morning Dan missed his boots, and, after a vain search, he suspiciously inquired of Mark, who was lying in bed, lazily smoking a clay pipe: "Mark, I can't find my boots. Do you know anything about 'are?"

"Your boots?" complacently replied Mark. "Well, yes; I threw them at that blasted can that was yowling around the house last night!"

"Threw my boots at the cat!" howled Dan in a rage. Why in h—didn't you throw your own boots?"
"Dan," said Mark, after a reflective puff or two: "Dan, if there is anything I hate it is a selfish man. I have observed of late that you are growing selfish. What difference does it make whose boots were thrown at the cat.

mysterious voodou charms and their power to harm, came within the notice of a reporter of the Picayune the other evening.

On St. Mary street, near the Levee, the reporter met a young negro woman walking towards the river, carrying a pillow slung over her right shoulder. She looked neither to the right nor the left, but straight shead, with such a strange expression that the curicaity of the reporter was aroused.

"Whither are you going?" he inquired.

"I'm a-going to de ribber," she answered, "to drown dis yer hoodoo pillow. "I dasn't look" she replied, "but it feels hard and bony-like and I'm gwine to drown it. I does it in dis way when I gets to de ribber bank, I pull out my knife, holds the pillow in my left hand, rip the pillow case and throw de feathers into de ribber over

This superstitious belief caused the reporter to smile, and he tried to reason with the women, but she shook her head and said: "De

A few days afterwards the reporter met the same women and jokingly inquired about the "hoodooed" pillow.

Esthing and Why We Should Bathe.

Bathing and Why We Should Bathe.

From the Western Rural.

Among all the appliances for health and comfort to mankind, we may safely say there is nothing so well known, so useful, and withal so comforting, and yet so little practiced, so carelessly and thoughtlessly neglected, as judicious bathing. The skin of the human body, from head to foot, is a network of pores. One can not put a finger on a single place without covering several hundred little openings, which ought always to be kept free and clear of obstructions. As evidence of the truth of this statement we need only call to mind the great drops of sweat so often seen gath-From the Western Rural. the truth of this statement we need only call to mind the great drops of sweat so often seen gathering on one's face and other parts of the body in warm weather—especially during time of over exertion. These pores are the openings into the min ute tules, or channels, which lead through unseen meanderings into the sanctum of life within.

The dust which comes into contact with animals covered with hair is mostly kept out, and the parspiration conducted away from the pores of the skin by those hairs; hence bathing is not so essential with them as with mahkind, whose bodies are practically denuded of such protection. The glutinous mass of perspiration, dust and filth, which gathers on the surface of the body naturally, coverand clogs the pores and often cater; them and poisons the system. To remove that filth, frequent ablutions and occasional immersions in every family should have a convenient bath—and a full bath, too—of some kind, not only for; eneral nearness of person, so desirable to every individual of taste and culture, but as a means of proserving health, and in many case, especially under the advice of a good physician, as the missipleasantest, and one of the most powerful and enticent means of combating disease.

Directed by good judgment and wise counsel, a bath is a valuable suriliary to other remedies, and the long catalogue of diseases to which fieth is helr, scarcely one can be named in the treat ment of which a bath is useless. To those biesed with good health, a bath, as a common seuse splyance, gives thrift and growth to healthy functions, a bright and delightful screnity, a clearnest of mind and buoyancy of spirit. It is certainly a blessing to both mind and body. For the mental worker, it is a nerve tonic. A thorough immiration in water of proper temperature will caim and give strength and tone to his whole system. The indoor laborer who gets but a scanty supply of fresh air, needs a bath to totain those invigorating elements so common in the open air.

The outdoor laborer—especially the farmer—who works with heroic energy all day long, unavoidably gathers om the entire surface of his body a complete prison wall of dust and thickening, gunmy perspiration; and when his/day's work is done, he needs then, more than any other thing, not only a wash, but a good, luscious, full bath to fit him for a clean bed and a refreshing sleep.

Finally, every one needs a bath at times, and every human habitation should contain something for a complete immersion in water, and, since convenient and efficient portable baths at comparatively low figures are now extensively advertised for sale, there is little excuse for any one to be without this priceiess benefit.

This powder never varies. A marvel of purity rength and wholesomeness. More economical than the ordinary kind, and cannot be sold in competition with the multitude of low test short weight alum or phosphate powders. Sold only in cans. ROYAL BAKING POWDER CO., 106 Wall street, New York.

Exchange, NEW YORK, August 5.—Everything at the stock exchange today was of the small, fetail kind, and nothing of special interest took place. The opening was fairly steady, the differences from last night's figures being in no case more than ¼ per cent, although a majority were lower. There was a slight recession from first prices, but the heaviness soon disappeared and a firm tone prevailed over the entire list throughout the morning. Wes-fern Union, however, was decidedly strong, ad-vancing I per cert. A dull and steady market succeeded until the last hour. Wabash at this time was conspicuous for strength and business, and pri-ces were stimulated over the whole market, which closed strong at the best prices of the day. Green & Co., in their report on cotton futures today, say: The day's session, though not very active as regards volume of business, trading was at fractionally higher prices, the stimulant being fears of crop damage in Texas, as rumors of serious harm from dry weather and abnormal heat were actively circulated. Yester-day's sellers came in as buyers today, and, finding offerings rather limited, bid the market up in order to get back their contracts. The close was fairly steady five points above last evening.

THE CHICAGO MARKET. Grain and Produce,

CHICAGO, August 5-The amount of wheat of CHICAGO, August 5—The amount of wheat of ocean passage showed an increase of less than ½ million bushels, instead of 1½ million bushels, as announced yesterday, caused a better feeling in wheat today. The market opened weak, starting at 78½c for September. Values steadily improved, however, until September had touched 77½c on good buying, reacted to 78½c and closed at that value bid.

It was contended that shipments from first hands show a falling off, and injury reports continue to come in; and, under this influence, corn recovered some of its strength today, the market closing higher.

Oats were stronger but quiet.

Provisions ruled lower, but closed well up to yes terday's figures.

REFORT OF THE DISTRICT GRAND LODGE YESTERDAY.

Reports From the Various Ledges-Election of Omcere for the Ensuing Year-Auniversary of St.
James Lodge at Big Bethel ChurchThe Address of Welcome; etc.

The colored Odd Fellows had a royal time

The district grand lodge convened at nine o'clock, and the meeting was presided over by B. W. Jackson. After the opening ceremonies reports from the various lodges represented were asked for. The reports showed the order in a flourishing condition, and that the membership is constantly increasing. Not a single lodge rendered a discouraging report. There are fifty five lodges in the state, and the membership is now one thousand, five hundred and eighty-five, showing an increase of nearly one-third during the past year. A number of new lodges have been instituted, and applications are now in for others. The outlook for the order was shown to be very encouraging, and the members have pledged themselves to return to their homes and work with renewed vigor for the upbuilding of the order.

ELECTION OF OFFICERS. After the reports were made the lodge went into an election of officers, resulting as folgust and will continue for three days.

ANNIVERSARY ST. JAMES LODGE.

The grand lodge adjourned at one o'clock and took part in the anniversary of St. James lodge at Big Bethel church. At three o'clock all the Atlanta lodges, together with the members of the grand lodge, marched through the principal streets to the church. There were several carriages in which the grand lodge officers rode. The one drawn by four beautiful white horses was furnished by Hill & Stewart. The address of welcome was made by Rev. J. S. Flipper. The speaker spoke of the order of Odd Fellows as being a sacred one, and that it was a stopping stone to the church which he placed high above all orders, societies or organizations. The rapid growth of the order was re erred to, and he said he trusted it would continue to flourish and grow until every colored man in the lard belonged to it. He was glad to welcome such a body of men to the homes and firefices of the people of Atlanta and he felt that their coming would be mutually beneficial, and that he only regretted that they could not meet here every year. The speaker could not meet here every year. The speaker was frequently interrupted with applause. THE GRATION. The oration by Professor William Howard

The oration by Professor William Howard Day, of Harisburg, Pennsylvania, was listened to with marked attention. The speaker was evidently thoroughly familiar with the workings of the order of Odd Fellows. Clear and plainly he reviewed the history of the order from the institution of the first body to the piesent, when its membership numbered thousands. Few if any orders had done more to alleviate the sufferings of humanity, and its benificent influences are everywhere felt. Only those who knew the workings of the lodge room could correctly estimate the true value of the order. To belong to such an order tinded to elevate man to higher and nobler walks of life. The address was highly entertaining and instructive.

THE TEACHERS' INSTITUTE.

Yesterday's Proceedings and the Programme for Today.

The institute opened promptly at 9:05. Prof. Caldwell did excellent work, and Mr. Baker showed that there is something in grammar, notwithstanding the present cry against it. Dr. Orr showed that local school against it. Dr. Orr showed that local school systems could reduce the cost of teaching one-third. About fifty towns in Georgia are able to adopt systems. Only eight have adopted them. He showed that in a government by the masses universal education is a necessity. He then gave an account of the various sources of law, giving the relation of the constitution and ordinary legislation. Mrs. Mallon taught inflection by examples. Major Slaton gave the Atlanta method of teaching addition. Ealled, breaking at tens." Professor Genn lectured on the orchid family of plants, especially the parasites among them. THE SLAYER OF MERRITT-John Coffee Said to be Near Lula--Shielded

John Coffee Said to be Near Lula--Shielded by His Friends.

From a private letter received by a gentleman in this city from a party in Lula the reporter learns that John Coffee, the moonshiner who shot and killed Deputy Marshal Merritt, at that place, a few months ago, is still near Lula, and says he does not intend to be run off by a lot of revenue men.

Coffee, the letter says, has never been twenty miles from Lula since the night he killed Merritt, but is cared for by friends and relatives. Several times revenue officers have attempted to capture him, but he managed to get out of their way. His friends are at every train, and he is kept posted all the time. He has been in Lula several times since the fatal night, but never in the day time. He swears that he will never be taken alive, and will kill any man who undertakes to arrest him. He goes well armed and there is no doubt but that he would make it unpleasant for a deputy marshal. The woman who caused the trouble has little to say. She has moved from the place she lived when the trouble occurred.

The revenue men here say they do not believe Coffee is near Lula. He is worth about five hundred dollars to the man who captures him.

The zoological exhibition is now open. Admission 10 cents for grown persons and 5 cents for children. 'Attractions at Grant Park.

Their liabilities are $13,000 with assets valued at $20,400.

Dunlop & Cohen have been conducting a printing office on the Hunter street; side of the Chamberlin & Johnson building for several years. They have always employed a large force of skilled hands, and have met their pay rolls and other obligations promptly on time. They have been doing a class of good work, and the impression that business was a lucrative one has prevailed, and the intelligence of their failure will prove a genuine surprise to the public. Recently, however, the firm had experienced quite a depression in business. Collections have been slow, ond orders not as abundant as when trade was better. These bave put the house in a position quite embarrassing, and one which trade was better. These bave put the house in a position quite embarrassing, and one which rendered them unable to meet their obligations promptly, as had been their custom. Fearing that their condition might not improve, they decided day before yesterday to make an assignment for the benefit of their creditors. Early yesterday morning the bill of assignment was drawn. In the bill Mr. R. H. Knapp was named as the assignee, and when the house opened doors for the business of the day the assignee was on hand. The assignment names Dr. J. O. Perkins and Rev. F. B. Tichnor as preferred creditors to the extent of $5.500. The liabilities are mostly foreign, while the assets are good, consisting of paper, types, presses, etc. The assignee, after making a careful examination of the books, says:

"The firm is perfectly solvent, and will be able to pay every dollar. All that is wanted is a little time."

Result of the Stone Cutters' Strike at the Capitol.

The striking stone cutters at the capitol building are still idle. building are still idle.

They are likely to be idle for some time if they expect to return to work at the building without being bossed by Foreman Douglass.

Messrs. Miles & Horn state positively that they will not discharge their foreman, but will keep him at any cost as they consider him an efficient man. The contractors advertise for non union stone cutters and put the price at five dollars per day and the job to hold good for tweve months and longer if the hold good for tweve months and longer if tue job is not completed by that time. Five dol-lars a day is more than is paid stone cutters, lars a day is more than is paid stone cutters, but Messrs. Miles and Horn say they intend to have good workmen and are willing to pay good prices. Under the laws of the stone cutters' association no union man will be allowed to work on the building. They have made the job a "scab" one, as they term it, and this will not be lifted until the foreman is discharged as demanded. is discharged, as demanded.

One of the strikers said last night:
"We do not care what price the gentlemen are willing to pay for the work, not a single man who struck will go back to work until Douglass is discharged. They can find men willing to work, but I am sure no real good stone cutter will accept a place in a scab shop. They may get a lot of bruisers to take our

FOUND DEAD.

Joseph Blair, an Old Colored Man, Found Deadin His Yard,

Joseph Blair, a negro seventy-two years old, was found dead yesterday morning in his yard, at the corner of Capitol avenue and Jones street.

For several years past Blair has suffered with asthma, and night before last he got up from his bed about midnight and went out into the yard and sat down by the side of the kitchen. His wife woke up about daylight at d went out to hunt for him. She found him sitting with him. She found him sitting with his head resting upon his arm. She spoke to him, but there was no reply. Taking hold of his arm she attempted to wake him, but found he was dead. The old woman was firantic with grief, and began to scream, Other parties heard her; and going out into the yard, carried the dead man into the house.

About ten o'clock Judge Maning held an inquest, and the jury decided that Blair's death was caused from asthma.

FOR THE LEGISLATURE.

SAM'L WEIL, Esq., is hereby announced as a candidate for the legislature from Fulton county, subject to the democratic nomination.

We are authorized to announce the name of WELLBORN BRAY as a candidate for the House of Representatives, subject to the action of the democratic party of Fulton county.

THE RELIEVED FIREMEN.

They Are Going Before the General Counci With a Petition.

Mr. Andy Boos and Firemen. Whidby and Westbrook, who were discharged by the board of firemasters, night before last, will carry their cases before the city council at the next regular meeting of that body.

The appeal to the council will be in the shape of a petition.

The petition has already been drawn. It was drawn yesterday by Mr. E. A. Angier. The petition states that the three men were discharged without trial and asks the council to inquire carefully into the case and instruct the board of firemasters to give them a fair and impartial trial. Mr. Boos yesterday and that he did not think that he and the two firemen had been treated fairly, "Why," said he "I never knew that I was being tried until I was notified that I had been discharged. The men were taken into the room one at a time and questioned. Their answers evidently caused our discharge. There is a plain rule of law which says that no man shall be tried for an offense unless he is present, and we were not present. We ought to have had a chance to question the witnesses. Why, we never had a copy of charges against us even."

Chief Joyner was informed of the petition and the statements made by the officers. He smiled and said: "No one was on trial, and no charges were necessary. The entire company. charges were necessary. The entire company was simply under investigation, and the infor-matien received was sufficient to warrant the discharge of the men, and they got it,"

WEAVER IS WEAVER.

HE MAN POSITIVELY AND ABSO LUTELY IDENTIFIED.

i. Ripley, of Indianapolia, Reaches Atlanta an Talks With Weaver-He Says that the Man is Weaver-Weaver Leaves for Chatta-nooga-Saveral Suits to Follow.

Weaver has been positively identified as James Pierce Weaver and has gone back to Chattanooga, where he expects to live out his life under the name of J. Pierce. The identification was thorough, satisfactory and complete.

Weaver arose early yesterday morning, and after breakfasting at the Piedmont paid his bill and went to the union passenger depot, determined to leave the city on the early train. He reached the depot some time before the departure of his train, and after buying a ticket to Chattanoogs, entered the wait room. In a short time the early morning train from Chattanooga arrived, and as it rolled into the depot Weaver stepped to the door and began looking flistlessly about him. The passengers left the train, and as him. The passengers left the train, and as they began going out of the depot Weaver stepped from the waiting room door and walked towards the main entrance to the depot. Just as he reached the ticket office window a tall, well built, handsome man, with a grip sack in his left hand and a duster thrown carelessly over his right arm, stepped from the sleeper and started out of the depot. In leaving the depot the stranger was compelled leaving the depot the stranger was compelled to pass very close to Weaver, and as he was in the act of passing accidentally glanced at him. Instantly the stranger stopped and, dropping his duster, extended his hand towards Weaver,

"Hello, Jim!" Weaver's back was half toward the stran-ger, but as he heard his name called turned slowly around until his eyes rested upon the msn in front of him. Then a smile spread of over his face, and grabbing the extended hand, said:

"How are you, Bill?"

The ware you, Shir."

The two men sho ok hands warmly for some seconds, and then stepping aside began talking. The stranger was W. I. Ripley, of Indianapolis, and his recognition of Woaver was convircing. Mr. Ripley quickly ascertained that Weaver was at the depot ready to leave the city and asked him to remain until noon, but Weaver declined saying. city and asked him to remain until noon, but Weaver declined, saying:
"You know me and can see Brown and tell him who I am. This thing has gone far enough, and I must get home today."
"But wait until I can see Mr. Brown and I'll leave on the next train with you. I'd like to ride up to Chattannooga with you."
"No, I can't stay. If they want me they know where to find me."
The two men talked for a long time, until Weaver's train was ready to leave and then

Weaver's train was ready to leave, and then parted. The conversation naturally turned upon the mysterious case to which Weaver was the key, and as naturally drifted back to old times. Weaver asked about old friends and associates, and in turn told Mr. Ripley of his life subsequent to his departure from Indianapolis. He asked about his children, and while talking of them manifested considerable feeling. Once or twice his eyes filled with tears, and with a frame trembling like an aspen, he said:

"I'd like to see them very much, but I can't

"Why don't you go to see them?"
"Oh, she would not let me see them, That would do me too much good. How are they getting on?

"Very well, I believe."
"Well, Bill, I am going to send you some money for them, and I want you to see that it is applied to their use—that they get the benefit of it. Will you do it?"
"Of course I will."
"But mind and I don't want have to get

"But, mind you, I don't want her to get one cent of the benefit of it, see," and as he spoke he brought his stick down upon the paving with force.

paving with force.

A short silence followed, during which Weaver's mind went back to the past. Suddealy he looked up and remarked:

'Say, Bill, why dou't she get a divorce?''

'I don't know,'' answered Mr. Ripley.

"Well, she'd just as well, for I'll never live with her again. I'm going to get one.

Just about this time Weaver's train started out, and, shaking hands with Mr. Ripley, he jumped aboard and in a few seconds were riding a residual towards.

Chattanooga. Mr. Ripley watched the train entil it was out of sight, and picking up his lise, went to the Kimball, where he breakted. Later in the day he called at Mr. own's office, and, introducing himself, uded Mr. Brown his letters of reference. He two gentlemen proceeded to business at once. Mr. Ripley informed Mr. Brown that he had seen Weaver at the depot, and that he was James Pierce Weaver, of Indiana. While at his breakfast table yesterday morning, Mr. Ladsden learned through THE CONSTITUTION, that Weaver had fully deter-mined to leave the city on the early morning train. This was not pleasant information for the attorney who had worked so hard to cure Weaver, so that the mystery might be cure Weaver, so that the mystery might be cleared up, and cutting the meal short, he hur-ried to his office. In a short time he ascer-tained that Weaver had made good his threat to leave the city. Mr. Ladsden at once deter-mined to have Weaver arrested before he got out of the state, and seating himself wrote a telegram to the marshal at Dalton, instructing him to arrest Weaver, but just as he was signing his name, Mr. Brown stepped in, accompanied by Mr. Ripley. The Indianaian was not long in letting, Mr. Ladsden know that he had seen Weaver at the train and the result of the meeting. Mr. Ripley's complete identification of Weaver, of course, rendered his rearrest unnecessary, and the complete identification of Weaver, of course, rendered his rearrest unnecessary, and the telegram was not sent. Mr. Ladsden, Mr. Brown and Mr. Ripley discussed the matter for some time, during which Mr. Ripley gave a sketch of Weaver's life.

Later in the day Mr. Ripley walked about the city, and during his rambles was encountered by a Constitution reporter, who "You are certain that he was Weaver?"

"Absolutely certain. There can be no mistake about it. You have seen men look alike, but there is always some difference that an old friend can detect." 'Then, he was Weaver?" "Oh, certainly. He had Jim Weaver's face.

his actions, his nose, his voice, his eyes and his walk. He talks like Jim Weaver, and he wears his eglasses. The entire family wears eye-glasses."

"How much family has he?"

He had an undertaking business in Indianapolis and burned out. The insurance companies did not think the fire was all right, and there was some trouble about getting the money. I bought some of the stock from him, and afterwards put his brother in business. but he drank so hard I had to take it mysel

"Of course I can't say as to that, for I don't know. But I do know she is a member of the Meridian Street Methopist church, and is con-sidered an estimable woman."

"Who is Mrs. Eden? "Who is Mrs. Eden?"

'Never saw her in my life, that I can recall.
She was the wife of a club foot, a man who attended the city hall—a janitor, I believe.
Eden shot him. Weaver told me this morning that he wanted me to give his children some money he would send me. I think he loves them a great deal."

"Wall he wanted to play dead anyhow."

"Well, he wanted to play dead, anyhow."
"I think he was in hopes his wife would get the money, and his children would be better off. But good-bye, I must go to the jail."

"For what?"
"To see young Ford who is in for horse theft. His parents live in Indianapolis, and I want to see him. By the way, I stopped in Chattanooga yesterday to see Weaver, thinking maybe he was there."

Mr. Ripley left at 1:35 yesterday afternoon for his home. He is a gentleman of education, of good business standing and brought fine letters with him. His identification thoroughly satisfied Mr. Brown.

for his home. He is a gentleman of education, of good business standing and brought fine letters with him. His identification thoroughly satisfied Mr. Brown.

The Indianapolis Sentinel, of the 4th, says: The new turn which the Pierce Weaver mystery has taken at Atlanta, Ga., has awakened a good deal of interest in this city, and the Sentinel's publication of yesterday was eagerly read and commented upon by the public generally. James P. Weaver was obee a well known man here, and his desertion of his family and flight with Mrs. Edu to Texas brought much sympathy to the deserted wife, and since Weaver's supposed death fier friends have expressed much anxiety to have her rights to the property sustained. Heretofore there has been no doubt that the man killed in the wreck was Weaver, and that the Eden woman was trying to rob Mrs. Weaver of the estate as she had already done of a husband. No one cares for Weaver, and if Mrs. Weaver could secure the property little would be said about him or his death. Soon after the accident in which Weaver or Pierce lost his life Mrs. Weaver could secure the property little would be said about him or his death. Soon after the accident in which Weaver or Pierce lost his life Mrs. Weaver received information which led her to believe that it was her recreate husband who was killed, and she was advised to go to Atlanta, end did so. Her story awakened a good deal of sympathy at Atlanta, and nearly every one believed that the dead man was Weaver. It is proper to add that Weaver, if this be Weaver, has proved himself a rascal in this community, and nothing he can say against his wronged wife will affect her in the least where she is known. She still believes that Weaver is dead, and if this man has been employed to represent Weaver the cheat will be demonstrated to the world. W. I. Ripley left yesterday for Atlanta, and will investigate the matter thoroughly.

in conversation with several men last night it was asserted by them that Weaver is known to be alive; that a letter written by him

The complete identification of Weaver and his departure from Atlanta do not retire him. He will appear again before the Atlanta and the general public, and this time as complainant in court. Weaver thinks that his arrest and compulsory trip to Atlanta were an outrage and that his character and standing in Chattanooga—which he says has always been good—bas been injured by dragging his name into court. Before leaving the city he employed the legal services of Messrs. Alexander & Turnbull and through them will bring suit against the Pierce estate of Texas for $10,000. In his declaration he will assert that his character has been injured, his business destroyed and his life made miserable by detectives put upon his track by the Pierce estate to hound him down. He will also sue Mr. C. T. Ladsden for $20,000 for unlawful arrest and detention, as he calls it. In the suit against the Pierce estate, the Georgia Pacific railroad and the East Tennessee will be garnisheed.

These suits are liable to lead to some sensational developments. Mr. Ladsden says that if they are filed he will have Weaver arrested on a warrant for living unlawfully with Mrs. Eden. Weaver asserts that if he is arrested again he will charge C. W. Bellen, who swore out the warrant upon which he was arrested, with perjury, and will charge Mr. Ladsden and Captain Couch with being parties to the same offense.

The identification of Weaver settles the his departure from Atlanta do not retire him

The identification of Weaver settles the question of suits against the railroads. Mrs. Weaver believing that the dead man was her husband, sued the East Tennessee and Georhusband, sued the East Tennessee and Georgia Pacific for $50,000 through her attorney, Mr. W. R. Brewn. Mrs. Pierce, the Texas lady, alse sued the roads through her attorney, Mr. Ladsden. Now that Weaver has been produced, Mrs. Weavers suit must fall through. Conductor May, on the Western and Atlantib railroad, while in Chattanooga on his last trip saw the man with whom Weaver boarded for several months, and the man was mad. "Why, he told me." said Conductor May.

"Why, he told me," said Conductor May "that he was going to have Weaver arrested soon as he reached town." "Why?" asked a Constitution reporter, to whom the conductor was talking.

"Because he lived with Mrs. Eden. You see he and Mrs. Eden have been passing as man and wife, and as such he introduced her into the gentleman's family. I tell you he "Is Mrs. Eden in Chattanooga now?"

"Did you ever see her?"
"Oh, no, but I am told that she is as handme a woman as ever lived. She is said to be highly educated too."

SAM SMALL'S WORK.

The Atlanta Evangelist Sees Weaver's Children Embrace Religion.

CINCINNATI, August 5 .- [Special.] -In a conversation with Rev. Sam Small at Loveland camp ground, he referred to the copy of THE Constitution he had just received and which contained the account of the arrest of J. P. Weaver, the Indianapolis undertaker. Mr.

"During the meetings held by Brother Sam Jones and myself in Indianapolis, in June, my attention was called to the Weaver case with peculiar distinctness. One afternoon I preach-ed in Roberts park church to a packed congre-gation, and there was an unusally deep im-pression created among the people. The Holy pression created among the people. The Holy Spirit seemed to be moving upon the people as we had not seen it before, and when 1 called the penitents to the altar there was a great crowd of them came forward, filing the altar crowd of them came forward, filling the aftar rail and adjacent pews. There were a number of bright and happy conversions. During the progress of the work some one called my attention to two young ladies who were weeping bitterly and seemed in great distress. I was told they were the daughters of Mr. J. P. Weaver, who had deserted his family and had heen killed in the railway secident was the been killed in the railway accident near At-lanta. I went to them and encouraged them to surrender their hearts to Christ and trust to surrender their hearts to Christ and trust Him as their Saviour and the Good Shepherd of their lives. Shortly after I had talked with them they seemed to receive the truth fully, and arose with happy faces, declaring their faith joyfully. There was much rejoicing among their friends, and they seemed to have many warm and sympathetic friends in the congregation. I learned they were attendants at Meridian-street church and to-day I met a pastor from Indianapolis who confirms their conversion."

I met a pastor from Indianapolis who confirms their conversion."

"What were their appearances?"

"They seemed, as I remember them, to be young ladies of modest demeanor, were nicely dressed and one, or both, of them wore spectacles for defective sight. They were spoken of by every one as very excellent and exemplary young people. They were certainly joyfully converted to Christ and their newfound life must be one of peace and hope. If Mr. Weaver will, he has now an opportunity to do perfect atonement for his past by devoting his life to these young daughters who have given their lives up to the doctrine of Christ. They need their father's help and loving counsel, no doubt, and perhapathey have obtained the key that will unlock all the problems of the past and open a clear way to a happy reconciliation of the estrangements of the past between their parents. It would certainly be worth Wr. Weaver's while to make a manly and sincere overture in this direction. I hope he will, and that God may bless the effort with a horse the servers with the effort with the manner. direction. I hope he will, and that God may bless the effort with a happy success and a re-union that will bless the entire family in time and eternity.'

Colonel John T. Mercer's Death. Mr. C. D. Camp, of Douglasville, sends this letter to THE CONSTITUTION:

DOCGLASVILLE, August 5, 1886.—Editors Constitution: In your issue of today I see a notice of the Gettysburg reunion September 8th, in which notice you speak of Colonel John T. Mercer, and say: "Opposite his name on the records is the single word 'killed.' I was a member of company A. Twenty-first Georgia Volunteers, and saw Colonel Mercer killed at Plymouth, N. C., at the time that the confederates, under General Hoke, recaptured that city, some time the last of April or first of May, 1864. My recollection is that he was buried at Tarboro or Lincoluton. Major Smith, "Bill Arp," spoke of his grave in a letter from North Carolina not a great while since. Very respectfully.

We take pleasure in calling attention to the card of Mesers. I.N.Robson & Son, of Charleston, S. in today's paper. Mr. Robson first visted our city in 1852. At that time there were no spacious and elegant hotels and he stopped at the Washington house and often with Mr. Thompson. On his first visit the hotels, such as they were, were so crowded he could not get even a chair to sleep on, there being a convention held here at the time and so in his experience tithas always been Atlanta believag in conventions and not hiding her light under a bushel. Mr. R. Peters was then just completing his flour mill. Mr. R. has from that time to this done a large business with our city and the neighboring mills especially with the Denmead at Marietta, Major M. A. Cooper, at Etowah, and his old friend, J. J. Howard, Cartersville, and others all along the route who were just commencing these enterprises that have given wealth and prosperity to our city and state. He still continues business in the same commodius store houses in Charleston which he commenced himself in 1839 and is ready to respond to all communications relative to his business.
